

9 Acknowledgements

---

The author is most grateful to:

- Historic Scotland for being the main grant-aider of this project
- The National Museums of Scotland for the funding of several sub-projects
- The Society of Antiquaries of Scotland for covering various expenses of the project
- The Russel Trust for funding the examination and analysis of several Mesolithic quartz assemblages
- The Catherine Mackichan Bursary Trust for covering travel expenses in connection with the examination of the Cnoc Dubh quartz quarry
- Shetland Museum for support in connection with the analysis of the Scord of Brouster quartz assemblage
- Principal Monuments Inspector Patrick Ashmore at Historic Scotland for his interest and support, as well as relevant comments to the manuscript
- Senior Curator Alan Saville, the National Museums of Scotland, for his detailed comments to the manuscript
- Beverley Ballin Smith, Glasgow University Archaeological Research Division, for valuable assistance in connection with the illustration of quartz artefacts
- Western Isles Archaeologist Mary MacLeod, Comhairle nan Eilean Siar, and amateur archaeologist Jim Crawford, Lewis, for valuable information on the Cnoc Dubh general environment.